Musical Harmony : Baithak- cum – workshop at JDMC On 19 September 2025, the department of music of Janki Devi memorial College organised a Baithak-cum-workshop attended by 21 audience members including students and the faculty. The session showcased a melodic combination with Indian Classical Instruments, Hansaveena and Tabla. The Hansaveena is a rare instrument created by Bharat Ratna Pandit Ravi Shankar, which has a combination of 4 main strings used for the melody, 4 strings for rhythm, that provide a continuous harmonic drone, and approximately 11 resonating strings that resonate in sympathy alongside the tabla which added rhythmic brilliance. The musical journey began with Radhika Venkatraman presenting an alaap in Raag ‘Shyam Kalyan’ followed by “jod” and the “gat” with the main melody, where improvisations known as taans were presented towards the end. The performance included a lively Jhala, a short tihai, alap, and finally Raag Yaman, along with musical combination of tabla. The workshop concluded on a graceful note, leaving the audience inspired and appreciative of the cultural heritage of Indian music.
